Recovering Simplicity

As women grow into adulthood, we too often grow away from our “young girl” experiences of God -- our trust in God’s presence and our own passionate desires. Coming to peace with ourselves as women means locating the shape of our souls -- the shape God designed in us. We will explore what it means to live deliberately as adults connected to the exuberant sense of awe and expectation that lies within. During this retreat, we will remember the Word hidden away in our hearts. We will let nature speak its Word to us. We will reflect on the lessons of simplicity God wants us to learn today as we carry forward the work of our mothers and grandmothers.

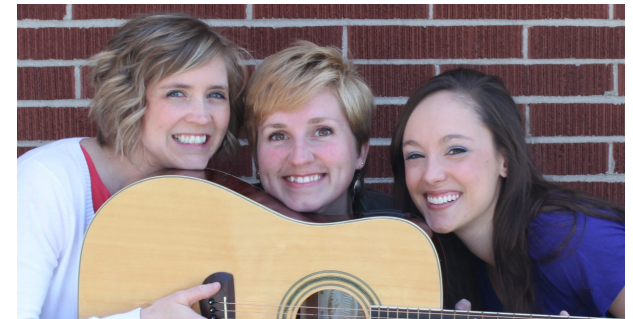

Speaker

Shirley Hershey Showalter grew up on a Mennonite family farm near Lititz, Pennsylvania. The first person in her family to go to college, she eventually became the first woman president of Goshen College in Indiana. After six years as an executive at the Fetzer Institute, Kalamazoo, Michigan, she became a full-time writer living in Harrisonburg, Virginia. Shirley has two adult children and two grandchildren. She wrote much of her memoir while living in Brooklyn, NY.

Worship Leaders

Janice Troyer, Lauren Eash Hershberger and Kelly Martin have recently combined talents as part of a group called Sidenotes. All graduated from Bethany Christian High School and Goshen College, and attend Silverwood Mennonite Church in Goshen, Indiana. They will be leading worship throughout our retreat.
